

Advice letter

Dear Juliet,

Your problem is very common in the young. You see someone that you like and you want to be with them for the rest of your life. My advice for you and Romeo would be to take it slow and learn more about each other.

If you take my advice you can have a few different outcomes. The first outcome would be that you and Romeo will learn more about each other and fall deeper into love. Learning more about each other is a great way to become more connected and learn what you can do to fix your differences. The other outcome would be that you and Romeo will learn that you and him aren't made for each other and you end up breaking up.

Let's say that you and Romeo don't take my advice. Also let's keep in mind that yours and Romeos families have been feuding for years. Ok so your parents find out that you and Romeo have gotten married. Your father Lord Capulet goes to Romeos house and confronts Lord Montague. Then they start to duel and both of them get killed in the fight. Another thing that could happen is that you try to run away together and you both end up killing yourselves on accident. Either way it happens it won't turn out good.

Sincerely,

Jacob Strauser
